The students have Kicked-Off the year!

The academic year has officially begun. During the first week, all the students in Antwerp started things off right, with a big party called 'Student Kick-Off'. The international students got familiar with the Belgian tradition of drinking slightly too much, whilst having too much fun. Amongst the students life has been good. The first friends have been made, from studying together, to sports, to even intercultural cooking.

Despite some administrative and a few housing problems, the trimester got on its way with some introductory classes on all the subjects that will be taught in Antwerp. Next to the regular scheduled classes, we had the privilege to listen to guest lecturers from ITB, in Indonesia.

On Monday, 9 October there was a meeting where representatives from the acquainted Universities provided us with the necessary information for the upcoming trimesters.

After the information session, there was a small reception for some informal Q&A. Our guests got to try the locally brewed 'Cum Laude'-beer from the University of Antwerp, let this be an indication of greater things to come.
